

I work for Ducks Unlimited. Every year when the ducks migrate, they are confused when they come back to their homes in Alberta. The ponds that Canadian geese used to come back to are now full of thick black dirty oil and they need to find new places to live. I've been trying so hard to get areas of land protected from the oil industry, but no one listens to me—all they seem to care about is money.

Facts that help to support my opinion: